

Colored ovals represent different species (three trophic levels) and grey circles within ovals represent genotypes of that species. Lines show interactions. What structure would we predict for genotype connections? What structure would we predict for between species?